

ONE HUNDRED PEOPLE EMPLOYED IN THE CAN FACTORY

Supt. J. G. Leonard, of the American Can factory on Lincoln avenue, between Twentieth and Twenty-first streets, reports that a force of 100 people is now employed in the factory and the prospects are that in the busy season of can-making about 100 more will be given employment. The fifth line of machinery will be installed in the near future for the manufacture of 2 1/2-pound cans.

Mr. Leonard regrets that the railroads are not disposed to give the canners of this district a better freight rate, as it will greatly curtail the canning business. He states also that the action of the transportation companies will have its effect on the can-making industry.

Mrs. Wiseman was charged with forgery a short time ago and Judge W. H. Reeder of the municipal court bound her over to await the action of the district attorney. It is questionable now, however, whether the district attorney will file an information against her.

PIONEER, THE FATHER OF 23 CHILDREN, DIES AT AGE OF 86

James Gale, aged 86 years, died at 5 a. m. today after a long illness of four years and three months from the result of a paralytic stroke. He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Lily Gale, and the following sons and daughters: J. C. Gale, Lund, Utah; Francis A. Gale, Plain City; and Hyrum E. H. D. Horace E. Gale; Mrs. M. Stone, Mrs. E. D. Stone, Mrs. Robert Stimpson and Mrs. L. Moulding of Ogden. Sixty-four grandchildren, 72 great-grandchildren and two great-great-grandchildren also survive.

Mr. Gale was born May 14, 1829, at Warminster, Wiltshire, England, and was baptized into the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-Day Saints in 1850 by Elder William Greenham. He left England, in 1851, for America, with his wife and one son, making the trip in the sailing vessel "George William Bowing." The ship was headed for New Orleans and three days before it arrived there, another son was born to Mr. and Mrs. Gale. New Orleans was reached after a ten weeks voyage from England and from that port went up the Mississippi river to St. Louis, where the Gales remained for one year. While living in St. Louis both of their children died and the third one, a daughter, was born on the plains in 1857.

Mr. and Mrs. Gale crossed the plains with a company of pioneers called the "Independent company," and the husband drove an ox team all the way, enduring all the hardships connected with the breaking of a pathway virtually through a wilderness. They arrived in Salt Lake City on August 28, 1852, and after they were settled down, Mr. Gale engaged in the building trade, helping to build the old Social hall in Salt Lake City, and he and Mrs. Gale also witnessed the laying of the corner stone of the Salt Lake temple.

They came to Ogden in 1855 and the pioneer builder worked with Joseph Parry, William Fife, Walter Thompson and others on the Ogden Tabernacle and many other pioneer structures. He also served his people as a volunteer in Echo canyon, during the time of the Johnson army scare. In the autumn of 1857, Mr. Gale was employed by John Taylor, afterward president of the Mormon church, in the latter's mill, and later engaged in the furniture and undertaking business in Ogden. He had lived on the same lot, where he passed away this morning, since 1855 and, in all, was the father of 23 children, 10 girls and 13 boys.

INDUSTRIAL SQUAD DEMANDS FOOD

New York, March 24.—The squad of seventy-five industrial workers of the World, who for the last two days have been occupying, as uninvited guests, the Daily temple, an east side mission house, marched out of the hall this afternoon singing "The Red Flag." Where they were going they did not know, they said, as they fell into line behind the leaders.

Miss Elizabeth Kay, director of the mission, called a meeting of the men shortly before they decided to leave and insisted upon their vacating the hall at once.

Theodore Freeman, leader of the men, advised them to follow Miss Kay's suggestion.

Earlier in the day a party of the squad had been dispatched on a foraging expedition.

The foragers announced their intention of entering restaurants and ordering food and then telling the proprietors to send the checks to the mayor's committee on the unemployed.

CHECKING THE USE LECTURES AT WEBER OF NARCOTICS ACADEMY BY IN OGDEN EXPERTS

A meeting of unusual importance to local druggists, physicians and dentists was held at the Weber club Monday night, when more than forty practicing members of the professions assembled to listen to a detailed explanation of the "Harriman Anti-Narcotic Law," which became effective on the first day of the present month.

The explanation of the law was given by L. W. Elliott, head of the United States internal revenue department in this district, and the meeting was specially called for that purpose by President A. R. McIntyre of the Utah Pharmaceutical association. The law, according to Mr. Elliott, is an internal revenue act and was primarily passed to prevent persons not licensed by the government to have narcotics in their possession excepting at times when it is prescribed by physicians.

Under the law, a government system of order blanks has been adopted and the druggist must use one of the blanks when ordering from the wholesaler and the physician in turn must use a similar blank when ordering from the druggist. The blanks are all numbered and a duplicate record of the names and addresses of the druggist, the physician and the patient, is kept on file for a period of two years, together with the amount of the narcotic that is purchased or used. This is done so that at any time an official inspector may ascertain whether anyone is using a narcotic to an unlawful degree. It also makes possible the tracing of a supply of morphine, cocaine or other similar drug, from the wholesaler to the final purchaser and in this way, it is expected that the present average of "dope" fiends in the country will be vastly decreased.

An inventory of all narcotics was taken by the druggists on the date that the law went into effect and revenue inspectors are authorized at any time to enter a druggist and make an investigation as to what has been done with the last supply of the prescribed drugs purchased.

In connection with his talk, Mr. Elliott stated that the present instance was the first time in his experience that professional men interested in any degree, in the distribution and use of narcotics, had ever made a request to be enlightened as to laws which are against their interests from a commercial point of view with a view to aiding the officers to enforce them. That the Utah druggists, physicians and dentists had in the past aided the officers in enforcing the existing laws regarding narcotics, was a further statement made by the visiting revenue officer. He stated also that evidence of this was found in the fact that the revenue service had found less trouble in Utah than in any other state and that this state was also much freer from users of stimulating drugs.

Mr. Elliott came to this district from the south and makes his headquarters in Salt Lake City.

In speaking of the meeting at the Weber club, which also included a fine banquet, President McIntyre stated that those present appreciated the talk given by Mr. Elliott, as they desire to abide strictly by the law, and the information given them will prove very helpful.

ACCUSED LAWYER IS ON THE STAND

Former Assistant District Attorney Faces Woman Who Sues Him for $50,000.

CLERK IDENTIFIES HIM

Witness Declares He Never Saw Miss Rae Tanser, His Accuser, Before.

New York, March 24.—James W. Osborne, former assistant district attorney of New York county, faced today Miss Rae Tanser, who is suing him for $50,000 damages for alleged breach of promise to marry, and swore on the witness stand he had never seen her in his life before.

F. T. Safford, who is clerk at the Kensington hotel, Plainfield, N. J., second witness for the defense, positively identified James W. Osborne, as the man who had registered at the hotel with Rae Tanser.

Miss Tanser charges that Osborne wooed her under the name of Oliver Osborne.

Today's hearing was before United States Commissioner Houghton. On Mr. Osborne's complaint that Miss Tanser had used the mails to defraud, the basis of this complaint was a bundle of letters which Miss Tanser, it is charged, mailed him before she filed her suit.

Seven letters to Osborne. Seven letters have been sent to him at the New York Athletic club, the witness asserted.

As Mr. Osborne testified, his words were closely followed by his wife seated near him.

Oliver Osborne, the young man who called on United States District Attorney Marshall several days ago and was quoted as saying he, and not James W. Osborne, was Miss Tanser's admirer, was not present.

Upon taking the witness stand, James W. Osborne surveyed Miss Tanser for fully half a minute in silence. She returned his gaze with unwavering eyes. Mr. Osborne then said he had never seen Miss Tanser before in his life.

The witness produced a letter he said he had received from Miss Tanser. The letter contained a photograph.

Letters Used as Evidence.

The letter which was received by Mr. Osborne at his office was introduced as evidence as well as one which Mr. Osborne said he had received from Miss Tanser at the New York Athletic club. The letter sent to Mr. Osborne's office read: "In it the writer addressed him as 'Dear Oliver' and said she knew she was not mistaken—that James W. Osborne and the man who had told her he was Oliver Osborne were the same."

Mr. Osborne admitted on cross-examination that he knew Miss Rose Helen Kaiser, the young woman who says Oliver Osborne was her admirer.

With the testimony of Mr. Osborne, the government rested its case. Formal motion of Daniel Slade, Miss Tanser's counsel, that the charge against his client be dismissed was denied and Miss Rose Kaiser, sister of the defendant, was called to the stand. She identified Mr. Osborne as a man who had called at the Tanser home in the Bronx.

RECALLS KILLING OF ARTHUR BROWN

Washington, March 24.—The shooting of former Senator Brown in a hotel here on December 8, 1906, by Mrs. Bradley, was the sensational culmination of an affair which four years previously had involved a civil court proceeding in which Mrs. Bradley charged Brown with having been the father of her two children.

Mrs. Bradley entered Brown's room in a hotel here and shot him three times, twice in the stomach and once in the head. He died later.

Brown's prominence and the sensational disclosures which furnished part of Mrs. Bradley's defense attracted wide attention to the shooting.

Lew Shank, Ex-Mayor of Indianapolis, Will Head Orpheum Bill This Week Opening Tomorrow

EX-MAYOR LEW SHANK

That politics and vaudeville will mix has been proven by Lew Shank, ex-mayor of Indianapolis, who will head the bill at Marcus Loew's Orpheum for three days this week, beginning tomorrow. Mayor Shank won country-wide fame during his term of office as mayor of Indianapolis because of his speculative and bitter war against the food trust. Mayor Shank, who has found in the year or more in which he has been in vaudeville, that audiences are invariably interested by everything he has to say. The reason for this is first, the novelty of a vaudeville audience listening to so unique an address, and second, because he speaks of things which vitally concern them, and which is interesting to everyone who has to spend money for food.

Mayor Shank started the country during his term of office when he bought hundreds of barrels of potatoes direct from the farmers, hired a store, and sold them to the public, going behind the counter himself to assist in the sales. This was to prove they could buy potatoes more cheaply, and he succeeded in proving his theory. This and other exploits in his war on the high cost of living made Mayor Shank nationally famous, so much so that he is a big drawing card in vaudeville.

His talk here will be illustrated by motion picture illustrations, including pictures of the opening of the big municipal market places in New York, when Mayor Shank was present and gave the mayor and the committee much valuable advice. Five other big acts, including a playlet on the underworld "The Grey of the Dawn," makes up the big vaudeville bill this week.—Advertisement.

GERMAN REPLY TO EARL GREY

Incompatible With Dignity of Great Power to Submit Question to Other Powers.

Berlin, March 24, by wireless to Sayville.—A reply to the speech of Sir Edward Grey, British foreign minister, on the cause of the war, was published today in the Norddeutsche Allgemeine Zeitung. Referring to Sir Edward's assertion that the crisis which preceded the war might have been settled by an international conference as was the Balkan crisis, the newspaper says:

"The Balkan conference decided matters of interest to several of the great powers, whereas the question at issue between Austria-Hungary and Serbia related to only two countries. It was, therefore, incompatible with the dignity of a great power to submit the question to other powers. Moreover, Russia would have availed herself of the delay for mobilization, thus making illusory the decisions of such a conference." The newspaper says that Great Britain had secret agreements with Russia, France and Belgium, whose existence always was denied.

The London Times admitted that England was not in the war for Belgium. It continues, "As to the pretended protection by Great Britain of the independence of smaller countries, the history of the British colonial empire and the use made of the British navy is a sufficient refutation."
